SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING RISKS WITHIN MAGNA'S OPERATIONS

Responding to the Requirements of the Acts

In connection with our obligations under the Acts, we have established a cross-functional working group (the "Working Group") comprised of corporate and operating group human resources, purchasing, compliance, and legal personnel. The Working Group meets periodically and is tasked with overseeing Magna's response to the Act, including:

- risk assessment of our operations with respect to slavery and human trafficking;
- preparation of this Statement;
- monitoring regulatory developments and evolving industry best practices with respect to slavery and human trafficking prevention and/or reporting; and
- reviewing Magna's policies and practices that relate to slavery and human trafficking.

Risk Assessment

Magna has conducted a preliminary risk assessment based on a comparison of its geographic operating footprint against countries identified in Walk Free's Global Slavery Index (the "Slavery Index"). Our risk assessment focused on countries identified in the Slavery Index as having an overall score over 40 in terms of vulnerability to modern slavery (112 of 167 countries analyzed). We operate in certain of the countries present on the focus list and thus potentially representing higher risk relating to modern slavery.

The Working Group continues to assess ways to enhance due diligence relating to slavery and human trafficking risks in our operations, including an emphasis on operations in the countries discussed above.

Magna's Approach to Addressing Slavery and Human Trafficking

Magna has a number of processes and practices in place that seek to address the risk of slavery and human trafficking as well as human rights in general, including:

A. Our Commitment to our Employees and Fair Labour Practices

We are committed to operating our business in a way that is based on fairness and concern for people. This philosophy is part of our "Fair Enterprise" culture in which employees and management share the responsibility to help ensure our success. Our Employee's Charter, a foundational document in our business, outlines the key principles of these commitments including Fair Treatment, a Safe and Healthful Workplace and Competitive Wages and Benefits.

We have also adopted a Global Labour Standards Policy, which codifies our existing practices consistent with our Fair Enterprise culture and provides a framework for our commitment to fundamental human rights and positive labour relations. In particular, the Global Labour Standards Policy sets out key commitments with regard to:

- maintaining respectful work environments where our employees feel safe and welcome, with opportunities for personal and professional growth;
- zero tolerance for harassment of any kind, including physical, sexual, psychological or verbal abuse;
- treating, compensating, and promoting employees without discrimination based on race, nationality or social origin, colour, sex, religion, gender identity, disability, sexual orientation, or any other ground protected by applicable law;
- · condemning and rejecting child, forced or compulsory labour;
- · maintaining safe and healthy workplaces and providing employees with appropriate rest and leisure time; and
- respecting the right of employees to associate freely and to bargain collectively where permitted by local laws and regulations.

Our Code of Conduct and Ethics ("Code"), which applies equally to all our directors, executive officers, employees and those acting on behalf of Magna, articulates our compliance-oriented values, our expectations generally, and our commitment to conducting business in a legal and ethical manner globally. It also clearly and unequivocally expresses our support for human rights, our intention to comply with human rights laws and regulations and zero tolerance for use of child or forced labour in our supply chain. Our policies with respect to our supply chain are discussed below.

B. Employee On-Boarding and Training

In order to help our employees understand the values, standards, and principles under our Code, we have implemented an ethics and compliance training program ("ELC Program"), which includes both web-based training and live through an online classroom platform. In addition, the onboarding process for new employees includes training with respect to the Code.

C. Our Expectations of our Suppliers

Like other automotive suppliers, Magna's supply chain is highly complex and consists of a substantial number of suppliers globally in any given year. The structure, size, and breadth of our supply chain, presents inherent challenges in efficiently assessing and addressing supply chain issues, such as human rights risks. As a result, our primary efforts to address slavery and human trafficking risks within our supply chain is focused on our direct suppliers.

We actively manage the relationship with our direct suppliers. Our Global Terms & Conditions (Global T&Cs), including our global standard supplier requirements manual, establish clear contractual requirements. We have also introduced a Supplier Code of Conduct and Ethics ("Supplier Code") which outlines the principles we apply internally at Magna through our Code, as well as expectations we have for every company that supplies goods or services to Magna. The Supplier Code includes our expectations of suppliers regarding human rights and acceptable working conditions. Together with our Global Working Conditions, the Supplier Code forms an integral part of our overall contractual relationship with our suppliers. We expect the standards set out in the Supplier Code to be met by our suppliers, even in jurisdictions where meeting such standards may not be considered part of the usual business culture and a failure to do so can result in the termination by Magna of the supply relationship. The full text of our Supplier Code is available on our website (www.magna.com). Magna communicates the standards expected of its suppliers through a variety of mechanisms including: supplier conferences; direct buyer interactions; correspondence with suppliers; and through our Corporate website and Supplier information portal.

From a risk management standpoint, we aim to review all new production suppliers in order to assess their overall quality and financial health. During any assessment, we also consider the presence of any internal policies and programs that suppliers have in place to address issues concerning, among other things, health and safety. No suppliers were terminated in 2022 as a result of a violation of working conditions or human rights.

D. Mechanisms for Reporting Unethical Behaviour

We maintain a culture that encourages the reporting of unethical behaviour. We provide several avenues for reporting of stakeholder concerns, including those related to human slavery and trafficking concerns. These avenues include our Open Door Process for employee communication with all levels of leadership, our employee Fairness Committees, Employee Advocates, and our confidential and anonymous whistle-blower Hotline for stakeholder reporting of a broad range of issues, including those relating to slavery and human trafficking. The Hotline is available for employees and other stakeholders such as customers and suppliers to make submissions online or by phone at any time, in 27 languages. Submissions are received and tracked by an independent third-party service provider. Those using the Hotline do not have to give their name, but if they choose to do so, it will be held in strict confidence. The Hotline is committed to investigating and resolving all concerns or complaints and must report the outcome to Magna's Global Human Resources Department.

In addition, our Corporate Human Resources Department conducts regular Employee Opinion Surveys ("EOS") at each of our facilities, every 12 to 18 months. This confidential and anonymous survey process assists us in evaluating local employment practices, and responsible leadership, with various sections requesting employee feedback on fair treatment, safety, compensation, and ethical business practices. Flowing out of our EOS process is a requirement that facility management participate in local employee focus groups, where management works in cooperation with our stakeholder employees to identify and improve local workplace issues of concern.

EVOLVING OUR EFFORTS

Magna will continue to examine ways to improve its assessment of risks relating to slavery and human trafficking. This includes the following:

- We have implemented a global Human Resources Information System ("HRIS") which allows for a greater degree of compliance related oversight with respect to manpower management, the use of contingent workers, and local hours of work, compensation, and working conditions.
- Our Human Resources Department is continuously enhancing Magna's Human Resources Audit (HRA) program, designed to assess HR compliance related issues, policies, and practices at the local divisional level and adherence to both Company policy and local laws, in a variety of areas, including prevention of forced labour and fair working conditions.
- We have engaged key suppliers to respond to self-assessment questionnaires (currently SAQ 5.0), a standard automotive industry sustainability questionnaire developed by global OEMs. The SAQ, which provides further transparency into our supply chain, requires information/documentation, relating to several topics, including, among other things: working conditions and human rights; health and safety; and responsible sourcing of raw materials.
- Assessing opportunities to provide additional awareness, training, best practices or other assistance to our suppliers with respect to the requirements of the Acts and slavery and human trafficking risks and prohibitions in general.
- Maintaining support for industry initiatives aimed at improving supply chain transparency.
- Evaluating opportunities to enhance our approach to address slavery and human trafficking risks including the monitoring of best practices adopted by peer companies and automotive customers, and those developed by industry organizations.
- Continual monitoring of legislative landscape regarding slavery and human trafficking. To this end we:
 - Continue to implement the requirements of the German Act on Corporate Due Diligence Obligations for the Prevention of Human Rights Violations in Supply Chains (Lieferkettensorgfaltspflichtengesetz (LkSG)) (the "German Act"). A cross-functional working group that includes representatives from various functions has been working on implementing measures to ensure compliance with the German Act. A Human Rights Officer has been appointed to oversee our compliance obligations under the German Act.
 - Are evaluating potential training options addressing human trafficking and forced/child labour issues.
 - Have begun implementation of a supplier monitoring and mapping tool to ensure due diligence obligations are met.
 - Are updating our Supplier Code of Conduct and Global Labour Standards to reflect legislative due diligence requirements.
 - Require our strategic suppliers to respond to automotive industry-standard self-assessment questionnaires, including, among other things, working conditions and human rights, as well as questions specifically addressed to German Act compliance.
 - Maintain our Magna Hotline for both internal and external reports dealing with illegal or unethical activity.

 Are monitoring new international legal requirements, including without limitation, the E.U. Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence regulation.

Magna is also a founding member of the Responsible Supply Chain Initiative (RSCI), an association of automotive OEMs, Tier 1 Suppliers and industry associations, which has established an assessment program for due diligence in the automotive supply chain relating to social compliance, occupational safety and environmental protection.

All activities and measures are aligned with and approved by a Steering Committee comprised of members of Magna senior leadership led by Magna's Global Vice President, Procurement.
